Hi _____,

I own the domain and website at SpringfieldLandscapers.com. I noticed you own SpringfieldLandscapers.net. I'm interested in quickly selling this to a Landscaper in Springfield and was wondering if you had any interest before I offer it to your competitor.

I'm not looking for much, so I'm accepting the first reasonable offer.

I'd appreciate if you'd let me know one way or the other.

Regards,

Hi _____,

I own a website, SpringfieldLandscapers.com which is designed to attract new leads and clients for landscapers in Springfield. I've become involved with clients in a different city, and wish to sell this particular website to a company like yours that can benefit from it.

The standard fee for a website of this nature is $1200, but since it is not yet customized for a specific company I'm willing to accept a much lower offer for a quick sale. Try me :-)

The domain name itself is a premium domain, as it contains the exact keywords people search for when looking online for a landscaper in Springfield. Of course, only one landscaper can own this domain.

Also note that the website itself is super easy to edit and change any way you want. Your business details and phone number can easily be integrated.

You will note the "blog" link at the bottom, which contains several quality articles. The whole website has been perfectly tuned to naturally attract search engines.

I'm wanting to sell quickly, and am contacting many landscapers in Springfield. The first one to reply to this email will get first shot at owning this at a fraction of its value.

I appreciate your time. Feel free to contact me via email or phone if you'd like to discuss.

Sincerely,

Your Name

P.S. You will also get the rights to the excellent 18-page report that your website visitors can download instantly. The report is an excellent promotional piece for you, and can easily be customized with your company information. Go download it for yourself to see.

Oh, and the new owner will also get matching FaceBook and Twitter accounts for "Springfield Landscapers" at no additional cost.

I will not email you again unless something changes. If you prefer to not hear from me again, just reply to this email and say "stop". Thanks.

Hi _____,

My name is _____, and I'm a local business owner.

This is not a sales message.

I'm the owner of SpringfieldLandscapers.com, and I want to give away free advertising on my website to just a few of our local landscaping companies.

You'll benefit as we promote our website locally.

I'll benefit because my website will gain popularity and rise in the search engines.

I've already placed your link on the page, but I will remove it in a day or two if I don't hear back from you, so I can give it to another landscaper (I'm only allowing four to participate).

Let me know,

Hi _____,

I own the website SpringfieldLandscapers.com, which is designed to attract new leads and clients for Landscaping in Springfield. I've become involved with clients in a different area and wish to sell this particular website to a company like yours that can benefit from owning it.

The person buying this domain will receive:

- A premium domain name
- A modern and easily edited website that is search engine optimized
- The rights to use a professionally written report your visitors can download instantly
- A professionally produced video that attracts potential clients and holds their attention

Typically, a quality website with a premium domain name, a professional report and video sells for over $1,500.

I want to sell this domain name and website quickly, so I am making this available to Landscaping companies in Springfield and the surrounding areas for $850, or best offer.

Only one Landscaping Company can own this domain of course, so I'll accept the first reasonable offer.

You have the opportunity to own this at a fraction of its true value.

I appreciate your time. Feel free to contact me via email or phone if you'd like to discuss.

Sincerely,
